Museum features nuptial finery

By Nicole Vaughn
Staff writer

When Cora Whittington married Herman Aitch in 1894, the young couple probably never imagined that pieces of their wedding day would become a part of Madison County history.

But they have. The wedding dress and head piece worn by Whittington as she took her marriage vows more than 100 years ago are part of the "Wedding Finery Exhibit" on display at the Madison County Historical Museum, 715 N. Main St., Edwardsville. The display runs through Aug. 31.

It features bridal gowns, groomswear and attendants' outfits dating back to 1872. Also included in the display are "Brides of Yesteryear" pen and ink sketches drawn by former Edwardsville resident John Berglin.

Hours at the museum are 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Wednesday through Friday, and 1 to 4 p.m. Sunday. Admission is free. For more information, or to arrange a group tour, call 656-7842.

Customers caught in middle of UPS strike

By Scott Kelly
Staff writer

Teamsters and United Parcel Service officials, while sparring over pensions and pay, want their strike over as soon as possible. So do customers.

Now that will happen is where the UPS and union members strongly disagree.

"We're extremely disappointed that the Teamsters have chosen to disregard the interests of customers and members and taken this irresponsible action," said Gary Finke, UPS human resources director at the Decatur facility, which runs operations for southern Illinois.

Pete Youngcourt, a business representative for Teamsters Local 688 in St. Louis, said support for the strike is good.

"We're pretty confident," he said. "Pickett lines are all up around the county. We're very pleased."

"In St. Louis, only two people have crossed the lines," he said. Local 688 has 3,700 members throughout the state.

Union members were picketing Monday at various St. Louis sites, especially at the main UPS complex at 18818 Rider Trail Drive in Earth City.

"We have a lot of customer support as well," Youngcourt said.

One customer said she just hopes the strike ends soon. Cheryl Ridgeway and her husband, John, owners of Ridgeway Portrait Design, 121 W. Main in Collinsville, use UPS every day.

The Ridgeways began preparing for the strike Friday and are now using the U.S. Postal Service to ship film to an Indiana lab. On Monday, there was a drop-off at the business, Ridgeway said. But UPS was not picking up any more packages, something a driver usually does each day during a second stop at the studio.

Mayor tears down to build up

By Michelle Duell
Staff writer

As mayor of Madison, John Hamm said he had great hopes for his community, and he thinks his leadership will help Madison succeed.

"I like my community," Hamm said, "and I feel I have the direct qualities needed to change things in the city."

Hamm is a businessman — owner of his own landscaping operation for 18 years, which is now being managed by his sons — and he works a 12-hour night shift at the Shell Oil Co. in Wood River, a job he has held while landscaping.

Hamm, 50, said he's been a businessman ever since he served as a U.S. Army paratrooper in Vietnam.

So when does he find time to be mayor eight hours of the day?

"I sleep before I go to work at Shell, and I sleep before I go to work as mayor," he said. "I generally get up before 7 o'clock in the morning."

Since Hamm became mayor, Madison has undergone a major cleanup campaign of side streets and Madison Avenue; and began tree trimming throughout the community and demolishing condemned buildings.

In addition, Hamm has cracked down on delinquent trash bills, city stickers and the sale of illegal drugs on city streets.

For example, the Madison Police Department recently arrested 22 offenders selling crack cocaine.

"I just felt like things weren't getting done before the general cleanup of the town, the streets," he said.

"We've thinned out 60 trees, and people are beginning to take ownership of their property," Hamm said. "The city needs to take a role, and I'm very proud of the street department and the police department in cleaning up the streets."

"The fire department has been watering grass in the city. Everyone has joined together for the same goals."

With the recent opening of the Gateway Raceway in Madison, the city is making an

Newsboys applications available

St. Louis area charities that serve needy children may apply for a 1997 Old Newsboys Day grant.

Old Newsboys Day, a St. Louis tradition, has raised almost $6 million since the first "newsboy" hawked a special-edition newspaper in 1957. All the money raised is distributed to needy children in the bistate area.

This year Old Newsboys Day is Nov. 6. On that day, thousands of volunteers will blanket street corners to peddle special-edition Old Newsboys Day Suburban Journals.

Old Newsboys Day grants will be awarded by the end of the year to charities that request funds to purchase needed supplies and equipment that directly benefit needy children.

Charities interested in receiving an application should send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Old Newsboys Day Funding Request, Suburban Journals, 1714 Deer Tracks Trail, St. Louis, Mo., 63131.

The deadline for application is Oct. 3.

Hundreds scoop up last of lake's fish

By Michelle Duell
Staff writer

Free live fish during the weekend drew nearly 400 people who tromped through mud and water at Horseshoe Lake's south end, hoping to grab and net the creatures as the lake's Park Department completed drainage of the area.

"People were clamoring for fish," said Ray Coleman, site superintendent of Horseshoe Lake State Park. "It was a lot of fun. One person got stuck in the mud, and her relatives had to pull her out."

People used their bare hands and fish nets to catch the fish and tossed them in coolers, Coleman said.

District fishery biologist Rob Maher estimated between 200

Celestial forecast

Shower of shooting stars observed in area every year since 1860s

By Cheryl A. Moody
Staff writer

The chance of a shower this week is 100 percent.

The Perseid meteor shower, a dramatic display of so-called shooting stars, will begin streaking through the night sky about Thursday.

The meteor shower is perfectly predictable, said Terri Gipson, Space Sciences program manager for the St. Louis Science Center. The shower has been observed about this time every year since at least the 1860s.

The celestial event takes its name from the constellation Perseus, because the incandescent meteors—popularly, though inaccurately, referred to as falling stars—seem to originate there.

"Perseus is a hero from Greek mythology," Gipson said. "He saved a princess from a water monster and killed the Medusa in the process."

Bev Pfeiffer-Harms, public relations manager for the Science Center, said the shower occurs when Earth passes through remnants of a comet called Swift Tuttle.

The shower will be visible through Aug. 15. The peak days will be Monday and Tuesday, Aug. 11 and 12.

The following tips may help you get a good view of the "shooting stars":

- View from a dark sky—that is, get as far from city lights as possible.
- View from an open area; a boat on a large body of water makes for an excellent viewing platform.
- View from as high up as possible.
- If possible, view after midnight.

Of course, weather conditions will affect the visibility of the shower. If the sky is clear, someone observing from a good viewing spot could spot a meteor as often as once a minute.

O'Fallon resident Greg Peterson said he has watched the meteor shower on several occasions from a boat on Carlyle Lake.

"When it was nice and clear, you could see one about every minute, and about every 30 minutes a spectacular one would shoot halfway across the sky," Peterson said. "A couple times a night, you could see one that would go from horizon to horizon."

In the Northern Hemisphere, the Perseid shower arrives at a pleasant time for viewing. The next major annual meteor shower will occur in December, Gipson said.

"You could see one about every minute, and every 30 minutes a spectacular one would shoot halfway across the sky."

Memorial puts famous faces in limelight

By Janet Stanford
Correspondent

A peek into the past of some famous people and their military service is now available at the Soldiers Memorial Military Museum, 1315 Chestnut St. in Downtown St. Louis.

Ten presidents, from Franklin D. Roosevelt to George Bush, are featured in the display. Twelve famous personalities are included and more will be added or rotated into the display later. Now included are Neil Armstrong, August A. Busch Jr., Elgin Baylor, Johnny Carson, Johnny Cash, Bill

According to the material on display, Lee Marvin's Purple Heart was received for action against the enemy at Saipan, Marianas Islands, on June 18, 1944.

Cosby, Marvin Gay, Kris Kristofferson, Lee Marvin, Steven McQueen, Paul Newman and Leon Spinks.

The exhibit contains applications, background information on awards received, service records and a variety of information about famous people long before their names had the recognition of today. In some cases, pictures from decades ago give a still recognizable, but much younger view of prominent people.

"Presidents and Personalities in Uniform" can be viewed from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. seven days a week. There is no charge to visit the museum, but morning visits are recommended because the museum is not air-conditioned.

These are some of the insights of the exhibit:

Special skills as an entertainer—ventriloquist, magician, master of ceremonies work—are mentioned on the qualifications questionnaire for officers on inactive duty filled out by John W. Carson in 1951.

At that time he was an employee of WOW radio station in Omaha, Neb. He had his own radio program and variety show six days per week, and a television variety program five days a week. A youthful photo, complete with pompadour hair style, shows a very young Johnny Carson.

According to the material on display, Lee Marvin's Purple Heart was sent to him at U.S. Fleet Hospital 108. He was cited for wounds received in action against the enemy at Saipan, Marianas Islands, on June 18, 1944.

Presidents featured in the display are Franklin D. Roosevelt, Harry S. Truman, Dwight D. Eisenhower, John F. Kennedy, Lyndon B. Johnson, Richard Nixon, Gerald R. Ford, Jimmy Carter, Ronald Reagan and George Bush.

Materials in the exhibit were provided by the National Personnel Records Center in St. Louis.

New SIUE chancellor search may not begin until February

Southern Illinois University isn't likely to fill outgoing Chancellor Nancy Belck's post for a number of months—at least not until a search team finds a new chancellor for the Carbondale campus.

John Haller, vice president of academic affairs in Carbondale, said last week the university is just beginning to search for its new chancellor there. Once that search is completed—perhaps by next February—the search will begin for a replacement for Belck in Edwardsville.

Belck's last day at SIUE reportedly is Aug. 22. She is leaving to become chancellor of the University of Nebraska at Omaha Sept. 1.

Haller said SIUE President Ted Sanders probably will name an interim chancellor in Edwardsville to serve until Belck's replacement is found. Sanders said he wants to talk with faculty and staff at SIUE before naming someone to the interim post.

In Carbondale, Donald L. Beggs, former dean of the College of Education, has been interim chancellor since July 1996.

Beggs was appointed to fill in for two years until a replacement is found for former Chancellor John C. Guyon, who resigned in June 1996 for health reasons.

Beggs took the temporary position with the understanding he would not be a candidate for chancellor or return to his former position as dean.

A 12-member committee of faculty, staff, students and alumni met July 28 to begin the search for a permanent SIUE chancellor, Haller said.

"It's off and running now. The advertisements will go out at the end of August or the first of September. We will start looking at applications around Oct. 15 and ultimately will send recommendations to President Sanders around Christmas, maybe a little before that."

If all goes according to plan, the SIUE Board of Trustees could name the new Carbondale chancellor at its meeting in February, he said.

The search process then will begin for a chancellor for Edwardsville.

Haller said officials do not want to conduct two chancellor searches concurrently and cannot use the same pool of applicants for both positions.

"They are different institutions, with different profiles and different missions. Each is a wonderful institution in its own way, and we would hate to confuse people."

The Carbondale search committee will be advertising in print media, on electronic (Internet) bulletin boards and by sending letters to colleges and universities soliciting nominations, Haller said.

Sanders provided the committee with "minimum requirements and parameters" for the Carbondale candidate, Haller said.

Among those criteria, he said, are to find someone familiar with a "Research II" level institution; ability to work well with faculty; willing to share governance duties and to engage in collective decision-making; possessing strong leadership skills; experience in collective bargaining and fund-raising; and "a strong commitment to diversity."

DUI OFFENSE: A 25-year-old Granite City man convicted of two previous DUI's was recently charged for the same offense after he allegedly wrecked a red, 1988 two-door Pontiac on Edwardsville Road, police said.

The man, Russell Holliday of the 2000 block of Hildebrand Street, was charged Monday with aggravated DUI and driving with a revoked license, both felonies, said Assistant Police Chief Kip Pomeroy.

Holliday, who is being held at the Granite City jail on $20,000 bond, faces one to three years in prison for each offense and a possible $10,000 fine for the DUI, Pomeroy said.

According to police reports, officers allegedly found an open bottle of whiskey in the driver's seat of the Pontiac.

Businesses, education highlights of Black Expo

By Lonnel Cole
Correspondent

Considering that business and education were two of the prominent themes of the Missouri Black Expo, it was only fitting that Debra Minor would capture the essence of both elements in assessing the event.

"I like to come to the Black Expo to see what kind of businesses are here," said Minor, as she browsed the exposition. "I'm able to learn more about black businesses in St. Louis. I can get educated on businesses and be exposed to different things."

"I need to learn more about business and this event gives me that opportunity."

Organizers projected that more than 50,000 people would pass through the turnstiles during the exposition July 26-27 at America's Center in downtown St. Louis. The event featured a myriad of activities, vendors, speakers and entertainment. The offerings were as diverse as the beverage, food and cosmetic samples; to educational and financial seminars; to gospel and soul concerts and boxing matches.

Now in its sixth year, the exposition is the most popular of all the African-American festivals or events in St. Louis, as evidenced by its drawing power.

Large and small black businesses alike were able to fraternize and display their goods and services. Moreover, mainstream companies such as Schnucks and Southwest Bell also set up shop, in a continuing attempt to expand their outreach efforts.

Conversely, black authors promoted books and black youths displayed their stage talents.

"I think it's a great idea they have something like this for young people," said Henry Davis as he watched several ensembles of youths from the Best Talent Center dazzle a section of spectators with dance numbers from old Broadway show tunes and Motown song classics. "It's a lot of young talent out here."

The talent transcended race, as the racially-mixed "Team 11" ensemble sponsored by KPLR-TV (Channel 11) captivated its audience with period blues and soul tunes. For good measure, Team 11 also had standout vocalists belting out the songs.

Show business, and just business, helped high-light the affair. It was a veritable seller's market, to a large degree.

"I just like the advantage of being able to do different shopping under one roof. I'm able to put my name out here for many people to notice."

Theresa M. Stephens
cosmetics retailer

"I'm here to sell books," said Michael Badsen with a laugh. Badsen is the author of "Never Satisfied: How and Why Men Cheat," and he signed flyers and copies of his book at the expo. Badsen said there's no pretense in such functions.

"This is what it's all about — selling books," said Badsen. "There's no sense in trying to complicate it."

Theresa M. Stephens of Mary Kay Cosmetics said the expo is the most appropriate place to network with other business people and display your own services.

"I just like the advantage of being able to do different shopping under one roof," said Stephens. "It's exciting. I'm able to put my name out here for many people to notice. That's important. It's a business move more than anything."

Ron Moore of the National Society of Black Engineers said as blacks explore more educational and financial options, clubs like his can play a larger part in their lives. Moore said he was there to educate aspiring black engineers and even avail them of scholarship opportunities that his organization can offer.

Oval Miller, a substance-abuse director, activist and historian, said the concept of a business exhibit for African-Americans represents positive progress.

"It's an excellent idea," said Miller. "Anything that brings black people together to promote each other's business is great. We've been told constantly that our products aren't good enough."

Judge falls ill in courtroom

Special to the Journal

U.S. District Judge Paul Riley of Edwardsville was taken ill during a trial in his East St. Louis courtroom the morning of July 29 and was rushed to Barnes-Jewish Hospital in St. Louis.

Chief Judge J. Phil Gilbert said he did not know what caused Riley's illness. "He is in stable condition and doing well."

Gilbert said he did not know how soon Riley, 55, could return to work.

"Knowing Judge Riley, we'll have to hold him down."

Investigators to gather

Death is usually considered an unpleasant topic, but groups of law enforcement officers, coroners, medical personnel and funeral directors will gather next month in Collinsville to discuss just that.

Lt. David Bradford, chief investigator for the Edwardsville Police Department, said he plans to be among those attending. He received initial approval to attend the four-day 1997 Medico-legal Death Investigation Conference in Collinsville.

The continuing-education conference, for which Madison County Coroner Dallas Burke will serve as host, is slated for Aug. 25 through 28.

Scheduled to speak at the conference are three investigation experts: retired New York City Detective Sgt. Harry O'Reilly, director of the Illinois Multi-Regional Criminal Justice Training Program; Cyril Welch, former president of both the American Academy of Forensic Science and the American College of Legal Medicine; and Detective Sgt. Joseph Matthews of the Miami Beach (Fla.) Police Department.

The conference will offer seminars on serial killers, suicide, child abuse, sex-related deaths, gunshot wounds, mass transportation deaths, blunt trauma, injury patterns and time of death.

Haine awaits report

Maximum fine imposed on company
Special to the Journal

Madison County State's Attorney William Haine is awaiting a state agency's report on the fatal July 3 fireworks explosion before considering criminal charges in the case.

Brent Manning, director of the Illinois Department of Natural Resources, announced July 24 that the department was levying a maximum $5,000 administrative fine against Mad Bomber Fireworks Productions Inc., of Crown Point, Ind.

Manning also said he would ask Haine to file criminal charges against the company for setting off fireworks without a state license.

Three workers for the company died when a skyrocket misfired and fell back onto a fireworks barge in the Mississippi River on the Alton riverfront, touching off remaining fireworks.

One man was killed by the explosions, and two others drowned after being blown off or jumping off the barge. Two other workers on the barge escaped without serious injury.

The DNR investigators found the company "possessed, used, handled and stored explosive materials in a manner that endangered public health, safety and welfare," Manning said.

On Thursday, a week after Manning said he was forwarding DNR findings to Haine, all Haine had was a news release and a summary of the agency's findings by a DNR attorney.

Haine said his office must review the full reports before deciding what action, if any, to take in the matter. He said his staff was trying to determine the reason for the delay.

The company entered into an agreement March 22 with the Alton Exposition Commission to provide fireworks displays this year and again in 1998, 1999 and 2000 for $18,000 per year.

Under the agreement, the commission was to "secure all police, fire, local and state permits." Another provision calls for the company to provide $5 million of liability insurance and evidence of workmen's compensation coverage.

Alton City Attorney Jim Schrempf said he had not been asked by city officials to look into the matter.

Alton's main interest is to prepare ourselves for what we're going to do the next time," Fire Chief Don Dugan said.

Dugan said the Fire Department inspects the sites of fireworks displays to try to ensure there is little chance of injuries to people or damage to property.

He said it was assumed the fireworks company knew what it was doing.

they can't track it the way UPS can."

The work stoppage was visible Monday at the UPS facility at St. Louis Regional Airport in Bethalto. No packages were being accepted there, not even high-priority items. Elsewhere, UPS supervisors are delivering high priority items, such as medicine, Youngcourt said.

Finke was unable to give exact figures on package deliveries, but he said that "volume is down quite a bit."

The Teamsters union is striking for higher wages, increased safety standards, more full-time positions and an end to subcontracting.

"Teamsters did not want to strike," Youngcourt said, but members said they said believe they had no choice. Their contract had expired Thursday, and union representatives walked out of talks with UPS late Sunday night and called the strike.

UPS officials said they do not believe the Teamsters' actions benefit customers or union members.

"If they really want to act in best interest of their people, then they need to put it before (the membership)," Finke said, referring to the new contract.

Finke said he thinks the union leadership's primary issue is over the company's wish to withdraw from the Teamsters' 31 multi-employer pension and health funds.

"(The) drivers do want to work," Finke said.

Festival to 'salute' children

By Kimberly Haas
Staff writer

A new and improved children's area will be featured at the Midwest Salute to the Masters Festival of Fine Art this year.

The Salute is a premier art festival held for the past ten years in Fairview Heights. One hundred artists working with various media are selected from around the world to participate. The event gives visitors an opportunity to purchase artwork while strolling through the Longacre Park grounds.

Visitors to Creation Station, which is designed specifically for children, will see the most changes during the festival. The Creation Station allows children to experience the art world first-hand by allowing them to participate in hands-on activities.

"Where can you have a child go and buy pieces of art for $2?" said Dawn Wilson, a director with the Salute.

Each participating artist is required to donate two pieces of art to the children's area. The art will be available for purchase by the children. Salute officials also will be supplementing the artwork by purchasing additional pieces with funding provided through a recent fundraiser and sponsorship.

"The demand is much greater than 200 children," Wilson said of the need to purchase additional pieces.

Proceeds from the fundraiser, "An Evening on the Left Bank," have enabled the Salute to expand the children's area. In addition, the St. Louis Rams Foundation is a $2,500 sponsor of the area.

"We're going to have a lot of entertainment on Saturday and Sunday," said Penny Reynolds, director of entertainment.

Puppeteers, storytellers and theatrical entertainment will be featured during the Salute. The event will be from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Aug. 23, and from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Aug. 24 at Longacre Park in Fairview Heights.

"We'll have a wide variety," Reynolds said. Entertainment will include Piwacket Theater Productions, who will be performing both days.

effort to revitalize and bring in new developments.

Before he became mayor, Hamm served as an alderman. "As an alderman," he said, "I had a firm grip on the finances."

As mayor, "I get right out with the street department. Some of the guys are aware I know how to run equipment. I enjoy that type of work and I get right out there with them."

"The street supervisor has been superb in training the guys how to use the equipment."

Hamm and his wife, Carol, have five children: John W. IV, Dawn, Joseph, Angela and Beth Ann. All live in the community, and two of them have bought homes in Madison, he said.

"I believe we need to clean (Madison) up," Hamm said. "I believe we need to tear down the derelict buildings. Thirty-five to 40 (buildings) need to come down and be replaced."

"I think that by doing that, it will build pride in the community."

and 300 were available.

"It was a pretty close estimate," Coleman said. "Not one fish was left. That was our goal. There was buffalo, crappie, carp and a small amount of bass, and the range was from 2 to 15 pounds for the fish."

"We had no bad smell, no dead fish, so we were quite happy with it."

Drainage of 80 acres of the lake to plant feed for waterfowl was the reason for the big fish free-for-all, said Coleman, adding the "response was good."

To drain that section of the lake, workers from the state park pumped the water, which passed through culverts to the lake's main area, Coleman said.

"Egrets (heron-like wading birds) and blue herons were feeding off the smaller fish, so it was a good educational experience," he said. "People came from Canada and videotaped the event, because they were curious about the process."

Coleman said Japanese millet would be planted in the drained lake bed and that the lake gradually would fill, allowing the waterfowl food to be grown so that it stands above the water line.

"The idea is for them (waterfowl) to eat heads off the plants," Coleman said.

Hazardous waste, history found at terminal dig

The Madison County Transit District has discovered that digging into the past can turn up a few surprises. The district broke ground in April for a $2.3 million transfer terminal at Main Street and Hillsboro Avenue in Edwardsville and has found an unexpected mix of hazardous waste and historical items.

The first phase of the job concentrated on removing the former Cassens auto dealership building, an old jail and related structures and cleaning up the environment. Crews have found several waste oil pipes and a fuel tank from what was probably once a service station that had to be abated.

"We are getting a history lesson on Edwardsville, but we're doing it the hard way," transit district managing director Jerry Kane said.

"Any time you undertake development of a site with previous buildings, you will likely find hazardous waste. We found three fuel tanks at the old Washington Theater site when we completed the Granite City station in 1993."

The digging in Edwardsville has also turned up a corroded pulley wheel that could have brought the water up from the well near the old jail. It was found at the bottom of the well, Kane said.

Newspapers from the '30s were found stuffed inside blocks at the jail, possibly used as insulation or sealer. Marian Sperling of the Madison County Historical Museum said she was not surprised by the newspaper.

"It was the Depression, and they used newspapers for everything. It was common then," she said.

Excavators also recovered a number of bricks, possibly from the county's previous jail, stacked up in one of the buildings on the property.

Markings on the bricks indicate they came from the jail completed Sept. 30, 1889, and torn down April 20, 1982. The bricks were probably stacked by a jailer, authorities said.

"The tunnel is still there and the ends are blocked, but it is so low, you would have to stoop to get through."

Jerry Kane
transit district managing director

One brick went to the city and one went to the county museum as part of the historical record, along with the jail's vintage iron fence removed from the yard, officials said.

Construction crews also found the tunnel under Main connecting the old courthouse to the power house in the old jail complex. Kane said he has heard the tales of using the tunnel to transfer prisoners from the jail to the courthouse but has found no evidence it ever happened.

Demolition crews blocked both entrances to the tunnel, which apparently carried little more than steam lines to transfer heat.

Coal-fired boilers in the turn-of-the-century power house sent steam heat to the courthouse, jail and sheriff's house. Asbestos in the area had to be removed, along with some cinders, but contractors found no evidence the tunnel was ever used for prisoners, Kane said.

"The tunnel is still there and the ends are blocked, but it is so low, you would have to stoop to get through," he said.

Former Sheriff George Musso agreed with Kane's assessment. "It's folklore," he said. "It never happened."

After the abatement is complete and the artifacts recovered, construction crews will move into phase two, concentrating on compacting the ground before construction gets under way.

Kane said the new building is to open May 1, 1998.

The transfer terminal will operate like an airline hub, with buses from all the surrounding communities arriving about the same time. The station will be linked to one operating in Granite City and later to Collinsville, officials said.

State highway crews try to beat heat

Maintenance workers on Illinois' state highways are beating the summer heat by starting their shift one hour earlier in the morning, the Illinois Department of Transportation has announced.

The new summer hours are from 6:30 a.m.-3 p.m., through Sept. 15.

This also means an earlier lunch break for the highway maintainers — from 10:30-11 a.m. — when many other workers are just taking a coffee break.

The change affects all highway maintenance workers whose duties include roadside mowing, other landscape work, litter pick-up, shoulder grading and repaving pavement markings.

"The Midwestern heat reflecting off highway pavement can be brutal and it makes sense to minimize the exposure to our workers," said IDOT Director of Highways Jim Siffer.

The summer shift is part of the collective bargaining agreement between IDOT and the Teamsters Union.

The Alzheimer's Association will present "How to Cope," an education class to help Granite City families dealing with Alzheimer's disease.

"How to Cope" provides practical caregiving tips for family members caring for someone in the early to middle stages of the disease. The two-day class will be held from 6 to 9 p.m. Thursday, and continue 6 to 9 p.m. Aug. 12, at St. Elizabeth's Hospital, 2100 Madison.

How to Cope, developed in St. Louis, received an Excellence in Programming award by the national Alzheimer's Association. The course is offered free of charge; advance registration is required.

Alzheimer's disease is a progressive, degenerative brain disease resulting in impaired memory, thinking and behavior. The disease is the fourth-leading cause of death among adults. The Alzheimer's Association of St. Louis serves 38 countries in eastern Missouri and western Illinois, helping more than 50,000 people affected by Alzheimer's and their caregivers. Across the United States, there are more than 4 million people affected by Alzheimer's and 20 million family members who care for them.

"Families and caregivers can become Alzheimer's second victims," says Kathleen O'Brien, Alzheimer's Association director. "With practical insights, families can make educated decisions on very difficult health issues. The Alzheimer's Association provides facts, resources and educational programs to help families cope with the disease."

The Alzheimer's Association of St. Louis is dedicated to enhancing the quality of life for all persons affected by Alzheimer's disease and related disorders through comprehensive educational programs, compassionate services, access to resources and support for research. ## Former county official named to second term on justice commission

A former area basketball standout has become one of the top juvenile justice professionals in the state after seeing the problems of juvenile crime from top to bottom.

Darrell McGibany, 51, of Alton, has been named for a second, three-year term on the Illinois Juvenile Justice Commission, which makes recommendations on spending several million dollars in federal money aimed at curbing juvenile crime.

McGibany was asked to join the commission because of his long professional career in the field.

He started as a Madison County juvenile probation officer and worked his way up to superintendent of the Madison County Juvenile Detention Center, one of the few such centers in the state.

The commission reviews and approves the state's annual juvenile justice plan as a requirement for the federal grant, approves juvenile justice grant applications, submits recommendations to the governor on juvenile justice legislation and reviews use of funds intended for compliance with federal laws that require separation of juvenile and adult offenders.

McGibany said the commission has a lot to do with transporting juveniles to approved detention centers to make sure they are separated from adult suspects and convicted offenders. Experience has shown that many juveniles are subjected to abuse by older prisoners and are more likely to commit suicide while locked up with more seasoned criminals.

Federal law also requires juvenile suspects to be out of sight and hearing of adults in the criminal justice system, he said.

McGibany said while some violent juveniles should be separated and confined to a juvenile lockup if convicted, the system still should attempt to get at the roots of juvenile crime.

He said it is a sad fact of life that young people, many of them in a second or third generation of a poverty lifestyle, are not given the same values as people raised in the middle class.

There should still be a mechanism to instill in those young people the values that at least give them a chance to become productive members of society, he said.

That's where professionals should come in and evaluate the needs of each young person to see if they can improve with some kind of supervised placement in their own homes and communities, rather than just locking them all behind bars, he said.

McGibany, who was recently promoted to director of probation and court services, said one-parent family situations are all some people know of family life.

"A lot of them come to us without any authority figures and respect for the law or feeling of belonging to a family."

"That's the reason some young people get involved in gangs; it tends to replace the family structure, and then drugs and alcohol also become a major problem."

McGibany said the chance to give young people some of what they are missing at home is the reason he became involved in volunteer coaching. On the courts and playing fields, the youngsters can be provided with the structure and guidance they need while still having fun, he said.

"Kids have a full range of needs. I'm living proof of the value of programs like sports," he said.

"Some of these kids have no one to encourage them and no one to understand them and give them positive reinforcement."

Because of the kinds of positive programs that can be provided in the community outside the detention center, McGibany is working on establishing community centers in cities in Madison County where the Probation and Parole Department can provide supervision without confinement.

McGibany said the concept reminds him of the book "It Takes a Village" by First Lady Hillary Rodham Clinton. The full expression is "It takes a village to raise a child."

Fight over village code goes to court

Special to the Journal

Village of Glen Carbon housing codes requiring registration and maintenance of all rental property before tenants can move in will get a first court test in September.

The village will ask a Madison County Circuit Court judge to keep Billy Coleman, doing business as Coleman Realty of St. Louis, and others from renting properties in the Village Circle area of Cottonwood without prior registration under the 1994 village code.

Authorities also are seeking fines up to $500 a day on 34 Coleman properties allegedly rented in violation of the code in the last year.

The latest complaint filed by village attorney Gary Peel in April alleges Coleman failed to register the property and failed to comply with the village's Rental Property Maintenance Code. The codes set up standards and occupancy requirements and regulate minimum maintenance conditions.

Joseph Kelleher Jr., Coleman's Edwardsville attorney, said he has taken the position that the village code is an illegal licensing act case.

"We believe the village has no right to impose licensing on housing. At this point, the village's housing code does not affect us," he said.

Kelleher said he has serious problems with the village's codes as a possible violation of the Fair Housing Act.

Village officials said the new rules were designed to clean up rental property to protect the health, safety and welfare of tenants. The code allows inspections for structural integrity, safety hazards, heating, sanitation and related factors.

"We think the court should force him to register the property, which has never been done since the code was approved," Peel said.

Manager can't face music of maturity

Friday's Senior Legion Fifth Division Playoff game between Tri-City and Murphysboro featured an exciting finish, as Post 127 rallied for five runs in the top of the ninth before falling to the Triplets 10-9.

But the furious finish was anticlimactic.

The real excitement occurred as the Tri-City players were heading to the dugout for their at-bats in the bottom of the sixth inning.

That's when Murphysboro's manager erupted from his dugout along the first base line and spewed over to the fence along the third base line, screaming at Chad Lignoul, who was playing traditional, between-inning baseball music through the PA system.

The problem?

Lignoul's choice of music was providing an unfair home field advantage for the Triplets.

No, you needn't bother re-reading that line to make sure you read it right. You did.

This is the same manager who complained in a previous game that Post 113's pitchers were throwing different baseballs than his own team's pitchers were. Something about the insignia made the balls being thrown by Tri-City hurlers non-regulation.

Go figure.

By Friday the major point of contention had moved from baseball insignias to music played over the PA system.

Personally, I learned long ago to pick my fights. Some things just aren't worth raising the blood pressure over. A disputable call at third base late in a tight game, maybe. But whether or not the PA guy plays "Take Me Out to the Ballgame" or the "Beer Lover's Polka," no way.

The problem on Friday was that the Tri-City coaching staff and the umpires were both already frustrated from the baseball argument of two days earlier. And now they were dodging verbal volleys from a red-face, veins bulging, eyes flashing Murphysboro manager who was equating afternoon song selection with Saddam Hussein's invasion of Kuwait.

The ensuing fracas brought both coaching staffs and all three umpires nose to nose in an intense screaming match, and nearly brought some of them to blows. In the end, one Tri-City coach was ejected and the game resumed... without music. By umpire's order.

There was justice, however. Tri-City struck for five runs in the sixth to move from a one run lead to a 10-4 advantage.

But what's the deal here, anyway?

This is legion ball. This is for the kids. This is to help young people learn how to be better ball players; how to be better in body, mind and spirit; and how to get along better with others.

A big help the Murphysboro manager was. The players definitely learned some things, that's for sure. But what bothers me is what they learned.

The junior high coach in my home town ran a basketball league for fourth- and fifth-graders every winter. Probably as many as 20 teams competed in an annual 10-game schedule. Parents did the coaching. But, after several years of adult coaches making

It was the hard way, but it was the winning way. The Granite City Titans had to battle the Cottage Hills Aces twice on Sunday before claiming the state Class A men's slow-pitch softball tournament at Gordon Moore Park in Alton.

"We've been in this tournament for five years and never even placed," said Titans manager Earl Luehmann. "This is a good feeling."

But it was a feeling almost denied by the Aces, who came into the championship game on a red-hot roll.

"We short-gamed them in the championship bracket," said team member Carl Luehmann of the Titans' earlier win over Cottage Hills. "But by the time we met them again, they were hitting the ball incredibly well."

In the loser's bracket, the Aces came from 13 runs down on Saturday to stun Pub II of Bloomington. Then, on Sunday, the Cottage Hills crew scored 20 runs over the last three innings to overcome a 22-3 Pub II lead and win 23-22.

Harshany harsh on Lakers Leads Steelers to victory with arm, bat

By Garen Vartanian
Staff writer

Behind the right arm and bat of Brian Harshany, host Granite City completed a doubleheader sweep by nipping Valmeyer 7-6 Sunday at Dal Maxwell Field.

Harshany went five solid innings for the win in game two, yielding five runs — three earned — while walking just one and fanning three.

At the plate, Harshany had three hits in the night cap, including a mammoth first-inning homer that staked the Steelers (19-7) to a 2-0 lead. His seventh-inning homer in game one drew Granite City even at 3-3 and helped lead the way to a 4-3 win.

"Harshany came loose today. He swung it pretty nice today," Granite City player-manager Daren DePew said. "He struggled a little bit last week, but he swung it pretty well today. We need him to."

Billy Niepert helped preserve Harshany's win with two innings of relief, earning the save.

Harshany also had offensive support from John

Both George Kirgan and Kevin Venne placed in the Cadet National Tournament at Colorado Springs, Colo., this past week. As a result, the pair are the first Cadet All-Americans from Granite City.

Kirgan, who will be a sophomore at Granite City High School, finished second in freestyle and third in Greco-Roman. Venne, who will be a junior, placed second in Greco-Roman.

"It was tough coming from the world championships in Slovakia, where I placed, and entering national competition," said Kirgan. "Every match in the nationals, you face someone who is looking to knock you off because of your success at the international level. It made the competition in Colorado Springs just that much tougher."

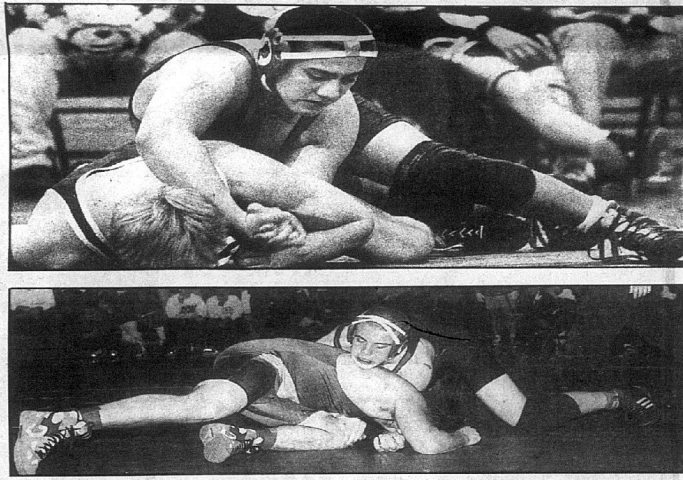

But Kirgan was almost unbeatable. In Greco-Roman style, Kirgan pinned five of six opponents in the 182 1/2-pound weight class on his way to an appearance in final four competition. Only Joshua Naus of California gave him a battle, losing 3-2 in the second match.

Naus had lost to Kirgan in the finals of the World Team Trials.

In the semifinals, Kirgan lost 6-0 to eventual champion John Trengre of Pennsylvania, then pinned his next opponent to capture third-place honors.

Three of Venne's six wins in the preliminary round of Greco-Roman competition were the result of pins in less than one minute. In fact, the GCHS matman, who placed second in the Illinois state tournament in March, pinned Louisiana's Scott Niquin in only 17 seconds of the first match.

Brilliant pitching by Jim Pecoraro and Brandon Musso wasn't quite enough as the Fairview Heights Senior Legion team lost to Mount Vernon in last weekend's Fifth Division Tournament at Granite City.

Post 978, which already had one loss in the double elimination tourney, beat Mount Vernon 7-3 Saturday afternoon to force a second and deciding game, which Mount Vernon won 3-2 in 10 innings.

"Whoever was here today got their money's worth," said Fairview Heights manager Dennis Schutzenhofer. "It was too bad somebody had to lose."

Pecoraro, who had missed most of the season with a chipped bone in his pitching hand, tossed a five-hitter in the first inning, striking out 10 and walking one. Musso, who left a July 26 game after two innings with a strained elbow, was equally impressive in the second game. He allowed two unearned runs over nine innings while striking out 10 and walking none, but didn't get a decision.

"Brandon Musso was out there with a bum elbow, but he gave us nine great innings," Schutzenhofer said. "He got up over 100 pitches, so we decided to take him out."

Don Grider took over in the top of the 10th and allowed a leadoff walk to Mount Vernon pitcher Casey Dodson. Sheekari Mays followed with a single. When Grider couldn't pick up a sacrifice bunt by Tommy Brewer, the bases were loaded with nobody out.

That's when Dante Brinkley came in from right field to relieve Grider, and he nearly got out of the jam. Kent Williams (See SHINE, Page 3B) lined out to center field and Dodson was forced out at home on a ground ball by Coleone Hawkins. But Brinkley walked catcher Jeff England on four straight pitches to bring in the winning run.

"Brinkley knew English was their best hitter and he was afraid to come in to him," Schutzenhofer said. "He put four pitches in the same place; he couldn't make the adjustment. But we got ourselves in that position by not being able to get the first three guys."

Fairview Heights got a one-out single by Klammer in the bottom of the 10th, but Dodson struck out Matt Robitaille and retired Andy Schutzenhofer on a grounder back to the mound to end the game. Post 978 didn't get its usual clutch hitting, stranding runners at third base five times.

"Hitting with guys on base has been the key to our success all year, but we couldn't get it done today," Dennis Schutzenhofer said. "That's a credit to them. They have four tough lefthanders. We had one run in 13 innings off (tournament MVP) Dodson (who was the winning pitcher Thursday in an 11-1 victory over Fairview Heights)."

Musso, who pitched no-hit ball for four innings, allowed two unearned runs in the fifth. But shortstop Greg Distler, whose error opened the gates for Mount Vernon, blasted a home run over the left-center field fence in the bottom of the fifth. In the seventh, Distler got a leadoff triple and scored the tying run on a wild pitch.

"It's been the same way for us all year — he's a gamer," Schutzenhofer said of Distler.

In the first game, Pecoraro shut out Mount Vernon on two hits over the first seven innings. A 1996 Belleville East graduate, he was Freshman of the Year in the Missouri Valley Conference after starring for SIU-Carbondale in a relief role. But he took a line drive on his hand during a Mon-Clair League game and has been sidelined most of the summer.

"After I broke my hand, I actually pitched one more game for the Legion team," Pecoraro said. "I hadn't thrown in about a month, but I threw (Saturday) and my hand felt good."

"I was strong early today, but about the fifth inning I started to get tired. I started tossing the ball at the plate, but the defense played great behind me. I didn't use the curveball much early, but when my arm started to tire, I pretty much dropped the fastball and stuck with the curve."

Fairview Heights took the 1-0 lead in the fourth as Adam Arriola was hit by a pitch, moved to second on a sacrifice and went to third on a ground out by Robitaille. Andy Schutzenhofer then drilled a two-out single up the middle to score Arriola.

Post 978 worked its two-out magic again in the sixth. Lead-off batter Brinkley reached on an error, moved to second on a ground out by Arriola and moved to third on a grounder by Klammer. Robitaille doubled to right to score Brinkley, and Andy Schutzenhofer's RBI single made the score 3-0.

In the eighth, Fairview Heights loaded the bases on a single by Klammer, a walk to Robitaille and a single by Schutzenhofer. Jason Burrows' RBI single made the score 4-0 and a walk to Larry Scheller forced in another run, chasing Mount Vernon starter Reed Backes from the game.

Schutzenhofer scored on a wild pitch and Jim Beever singled to give Post 978 a 7-0 lead.

"Jim Beever is the heart and soul of this team," Dennis Schutzenhofer said. "He caught game after game — he's a great inspiration to us."

Andy Schutzenhofer, who like Beever split time with the Fairview Heights Junior Legion team, had three hits in each game.

"I'm pretty proud of him," Dennis Schutzenhofer said of his son. "He hit over 500 in this tournament, and those hits were off lefthanders, which is pretty tough. We also got great defense from Mark Klammer at third base."

Mount Vernon (31-9) will play at 10 a.m. Wednesday in the first round of the state tournament at Mattoon. Fairview Heights finished the year at 36-10.

was good. We hit the ball well. They were good ballgames."

Harshany, Hendrickson, Tim Hogan and Moad helped Granite City to a 7-2 cushion after two innings.

Hogan reached on a two-base error leading off. Following a strikeout, Moad's single chased home Hogan and gave the Steelers a 1-0 margin. Moad, however, was nailed trying to stretch his safety into a double.

Harshany then rifled his long round-tripper for a 2-0 lead. Jamie Hogan singled, and Hendrickson capped the frame with a two-run circuit shot.

After Valmeyer drew within 4-3 in the second, Tim Hogan, taking advantage of the fenceless field, opened the home half with a round-tripper off Lakers starter and loser Dave Lucht.

Jason Wood then singled, swiped second and raced home on Moad's RBI safety. Following a single by Harshany and an out, Hendrickson made it 7-2 with a sacrifice fly.

Valmeyer did chip away, plating a pair of unearned tallies in the fourth. Solo blasts by Tim Degener and Craig Hoffmann later brought the Lakers within 7-6, but Granite City was able to hang on.

"The big thing is we gave them too big of a lead in the second ballgame, and having to come back, we did a fine job, but not enough," Valmeyer manager Dennis Pieper said. "We probably needed two more innings. They've got a good hitting ballclub and so do we, and we had some chances. I thought overall we played well. It's just the first two innings, the pitching wasn't real strong during that time and allowed them to score seven runs and we played catch up the rest of the day."

Next up for Valmeyer is a battle with rival Waterloo Sts. Peter and Paul Field Sunday.

Granite City, meanwhile, travels to Saugeen on Friday.

IN THE OPENER, Granite City overcame a 3-0 deficit to record a 4-3 verdict.

The Steelers notched single tallies in the fifth and sixth before tying the contest on Harshany's homer.

Later in the frame, Brad Ervay's RBI single clinched Granite City's decision.

Venne lost in the championship match of the 200-pound weight class, falling to world champion Joshua Eiu of New York.

Venne did not fare as well in freestyle, winning his first two matches before falling in successive bouts. The losses kept him out of the semifinal round.

Kirgan, meanwhile, won four straight matches in freestyle before losing to Matt Hogue of Pennsylvania. But he rebounded to soundly beat his next two opponents, reaching the final four round.

In the title match, Kirgan again met Tregre and was again narrowly defeated.

So far as anyone knows, Kirgan and Venne represent a first in Cadet National Competition. Never before had two wrestlers from the same school placed in the nationals.

In all, Illinois was represented by 15 all-Americans, including Kirgan, who was a double all-American (Greco and freestyle), and Venne.

Kirgan has had an exceptionally busy summer. Aside from state, national and world competition, he has spent his summer participating in camps from Chicago to Colorado.

Since the end of school this spring, Kirgan has wrestled in 82 matches, winning 74 times. Of his eight losses, three were in the nationals, two in world competition, and three others to wrestlers significantly older and more experienced.

Before school begins later this month, Kirgan will have under his belt two more weeks of camp at the Olympic Training Center in Colorado Springs. Both camp weeks are intense, training young athletes in the international style.

"My experience and success this summer give me a lot of confidence for the upcoming high school wrestling season," said Kirgan. "My goal for myself is an individual state championship."

winning game one and taking a commanding 15-7 lead after the first two innings of the second game.

"We started pecking away at their lead in the fifth inning," said Carl Luehmann. "This team has a lot of character. We knew we could come back."

By the time the bottom of the seventh rolled around, we were confident that we would win."

With Cottage Hills leading 16-15 through six innings, the Aces went down in order in the top of the seventh.

Carl Luehmann opened the bottom of the seventh for the Titans with a single. Jeff Stephens followed with a sharp single of his own, putting two men aboard. Mike Sues then sent a ringing double to the wall, scoring both Luehmann and Stephens and giving Granite City a dramatic 17-16 win.

It marked the first time in two games that the Titans had led the Aces.

"Second place isn't what we came here for, and we're pretty dejected right now," said Cottage Hills manager Dale Emerick. "To fight so hard and come up short is disappointing. But I think we'll feel better tomorrow. Second place always looks better the day after."

"We showed our character down the stretch," said Earl Luehmann. "It was a big day and we feel great."

Six Titans made the ASA Slow-Pitch Softball All-State Tournament Team. Outfielders Kurt Meschke (.590, 7 HR), Ryan Reeves (.765, 4 HR) and Don Bruns (.885, 14 HR) were selected, as were infielders Jeff Stephens (.724) and George Jarvis (.714, 7 HR), and pitcher Brian Patterson.

Bruns was also chosen the tournament's Most Valuable Player.

fools of themselves by throwing temper tantrums, not to mention basketballs, coaching responsibilities were taken away from the parents and given, instead, to high school

Turn the legion team over to a kid. Chances are, he'll have a higher level of maturity than was demonstrated by a certain adult coach on Friday.

But, one thing is obvious: the coach either needs some counseling or a new summer career. Otherwise, who knows? The big baseball problem next year could be that the bravest sold from the concession stand are too well done.

Bakari Institute teaches African culture

By Jason White
Staff writer

An East St. Louis organization is using African culture to instill the values of community and family in young people. Jahi Bakari, 32, founded the Bakari Institute in January 1993 to help students improve academically.

"I wanted to do a pilot project to determine the effectiveness of African cultural education on black students, to see if it would help them in school," Bakari said.

The institute sponsors community events throughout the year, including the seven days of Kwanzaa in December and the Peaceful African Nights summer concert series, which features African and Caribbean music.

"I want to create an environment where black families can appreciate their heritage," Bakari said.

The institute is an umbrella organization for the Urban Community and Harvesting New Generations. Urban Community is an after-school program that trains youth in martial arts, dance and drum techniques, hair braiding, and arts-and-crafts.

Harvesting New Generations is a summer program in which Urban Community students share their skills with community groups.

The 14 students currently in Urban Community are required to learn 100 words in Kiswahili and to know all 52 African countries. They are also taught about African history and culture.

"History is so crucial to young people," Bakari said. "By knowing your history, you know that you can't raise your voice to your elders. You understand how the current situation came into existence."

African and American societies present sharp contrasts, Bakari said. "In African society, youth participate in everything. In America, children are in the way."

Traditional African society also emphasizes pride in community, he said. "With community pride, you build family pride. Everybody wants to do their part."

"Here, everybody wants to sit back and get the rewards without putting anything in," he said.

Bakari said he focuses on instilling discipline. "Young people need discipline," he said. "They don't seem to mind it."

Siyolo Bakari, 16, said he wanted to get help improving his grades when he joined the program last year. "From then on, my grades started coming up and my academic skills have improved," he said.

Tuwalole Bakari, 14, said the program has taught her "how to be a leader. . . If you know something needs to be done, just do it yourself," she said.

All students take the surname Bakari, which means "of noble promise," in Kiswahili, which is spoken by about 75 million people in southern and eastern Africa, Bakari said.

"I expect these young people to be leaders who are going to reshape our community. . . to the degree that people are more civil to each other," he said.

Revolution at home sent many Germans to this area

By Cheryl A. Moody
Staff writer

In 1839 at the age of 21, George Phillip Lienesch sailed to New Orleans from Anklam, Germany. Lienesch was the great-grandfather of Belleville resident Donald Lienesch.

"He just wanted to travel and see the world," Donald Lienesch said. "He had friends here."

St. Clair County Historical Society member for 35 years and 34-year Belleville High School history teacher Bob Gentsch said many Germans fled their country from 1832-1833 and 1848-1849.

"The German states revolted to throw off the autocratic rule that existed," Gentsch said. "They were not successful. That left them with two choices, either get out or die."

Donald Lienesch's great-grandfather and grandfather eventually settled along Green Mount Road. His father lived there also, until he followed the wheat harvest to Montana and then moved to Charleston, Mo., where he operated a fattening pen for cattle.

After his father's death at the age of 32 in 1928, Donald, his mother and two sisters moved to O'Fallon. Donald permanently located in Belleville after World War II.

Gentsch said many of the Germans came to the St. Louis area because other German immigrants were here. Lienesch said they also came to the Belleville area because of its similarity to the northwestern part of Germany.

The Hilgards were one of the families to join other Germans in the area. Gentsch said they immigrated here in the 1832-1833 time frame.

American Legion Post 58 in Belleville is named after George E. Hilgard. Many other Germans migrated to the area, including Gustav Koerner — a good friend of Abraham Lincoln — and one of the founders of Shaw's Gardens in St. Louis, Sophie Engelmann.

The neighboring town of Hecker is named after Frederick Hecker who immigrated to the states during the 1849-1849 time frame.

When the Germans moved here they built homes called street houses because they sat so close to the front sidewalk. The German people did not care about having a big front yard, but instead wanted a huge back yard for growing gardens and grapes for wine. Ethelyn Boyd from Mascoutah said.

She said the people also had chickens yards and barns with cows and horses in back. The Belleville street now called Garfield Street was at one time called Cow Street, because the cows walked down the street to graze in an open field now East Side Park.

"The Germans spurred education," Gentsch said. "They were bright and well educated. They started one of the first libraries in the state of Illinois."

To find out more about the city's German Heritage, the library or St. Clair County Historical Society have many resources. For information call 234-0600.

Jobs in mines, bakeries, taverns lured the Italians here

By Nicole Vaughn
Staff writer

Collinsville is known for the annual celebration of its Italian roots that draws large crowds to downtown.

Those who regularly attend the Italian Fest are familiar with its varied menu, live music and authentic activities, such as grape-stomping. But what people may be less familiar with are the ones responsible for that part of Collinsville's heritage.

They were Italian immigrants who owned — or were employed by — bakeries or taverns. The majority were laborers who worked in Collinsville's mines and its brickyard.

They were people like Giovanni Sperandeo. Sperandeo was the great-uncle of Floyd Sperino, co-curator of the Collinsville Historical Museum. (The name discrepancy is the result of a clerical error made at Ellis Island. Something was obviously lost in the Italian to English translation.)

Sperandeo followed his two elder brothers to America. One of them, Sam, Sperino's grandfather, came in 1900.

Sperandeo worked in the brickyard after a railway accident cost him his left arm and most of his right hand. He was cured far by former mayor and distinguished doctor Moses Harrison. While he was recuperating, Sperandeo met School Superintendent C.H. Dorris, who took an instant liking to the young man.

"He told him: 'John (Sperandeo's English name) I think you should be in school' and he put him in the fourth grade," Sperino said.

Within six months, Sperandeo had moved to eighth grade work and two years later, he completed high school. He went on to Washington University. Later, Sperandeo would

"He settled out there because he wanted to be a farmer," said. "That didn't last and he worked in the mines."

Floyd Sperino
Museum co-curator

teach English to the Italian immigrants and toured schools throughout the country with his inspiring story, Sperino said.

Sam Sperino (who, unlike his brother, used his Americanized surname) moved into Collinsville's east end, a sort of "Little Italy."

"He settled out there because he wanted to be a farmer," Floyd Sperino said. "That didn't last and he worked in the mines."

Sperino said native Italians flocked to Collinsville in the late 1800s and early 1900s, many with encouragement from Dr. Octavius Lumaghi. Lumaghi had settled in the southern Illinois town and needed workers for the mining company he founded there.

"He traveled to Italy and all over Europe and told the people, 'Come on over. There's jobs for everyone.' And a lot of them did," Sperino said. "America was the land of opportunity."

"The Italians settled around the mines where they worked not only for convenience but because it was good land to plant grapes and potatoes."

"They liked the hilly landscape," Sperino said. "It reminded them of home."

Store operators decorate their display windows in the annual Italianfest competition.

Mean characters often enhance TV shows

By Kevin Carberry
Correspondent

The surest way to ruin a television show is to change the characters' personalities from nasty to lovable. Why do I say this? I've seen it happen too many times. "Hill Street Blues," for instance, was a far better program with Belker as a vicious, attack-dog kind of cop. In the later episodes, after he had fallen in love and become nicer, he was nowhere near as interesting. "M*A*S*H," which I loved for the first several years of its run, developed many problems, but one of the worst things that happened in it was the change in Radar. In the first few years, Radar was something of a punk who drank Henry's liquor and would sneak peeks into the nurses' showers. At some point, however, the writers turned Radar into a complete milquetoast. Similarly, "Happy Days" was much funnier with the Fonzie as a street tough, rather than the mentor he became a few seasons into its run. All of this brings me to the show "Seinfeld." One of the reasons this program has maintained my attention over the years is it has kept its characters petty and often mean-spirited. Jerry, George, Elaine and Kramer all are capable of being jerks. In addition, the secondary characters of George's parents, Frank and Estelle Costanza, have remained hilariously nasty to each other and to the world in general. Another character, Newman, is pure evil, according to Jerry. This is not a nice show and I love it for its venom. The "Seinfeld" characters are people who are capable of anything. They have kidnapped dogs, undercut other people's relationships and even stolen a loaf of bread from an old lady. The Jerry character is probably the most civil of the bunch, but he is certainly not the most stable person for a woman to date. He has broken up with girlfriends for reasons such as them having large hands or having a strange laugh. One was too good of a person for him. Kramer is more delusional than mean, but he has his moments of maliciousness. In one early episode, he dumps concrete in a washing machine at a laundry to get even on Jerry's behalf. I am looking forward to the ninth season of "Seinfeld" next year and still enjoy watching the reruns. This week's trivia is all about the show. Keep that nastiness coming, I say.

1. Kramer appears on what television talk show when hawking his book about coffee tables?
2. Who, while obsessed with Elaine, ends up stalking the girl in the opera dressed as a clown?
3. What are the names of the counterparts of Jerry, George and Kramer in the Bizarro Jerry episode?
4. Which character's hideous dancing ability comes into ridicule in an episode?
5. Which real-life sports team owner is repeatedly made fun of in the show?
6. What kind of illegal sporting event involving animals do Kramer and Jerry get involved with in a show?
7. What strange name does George have picked out for his baby when he has his first child?
8. What is Elaine's middle name?
9. What is Kramer's first name?
10. What is the name of the cafe the gang frequents?
Answers: 1. "Regis & Kathie Lee." 2. Crazy Joe Davola. 3. Kevin, Gene and Feldman, respectively. 4. Elaine. 5. George Steinbrenner, owner of the New York Yankees. 6. Cockfighting. 7. Seven, which was Mickey Mantle's number. 8. Marie. 9. Cosmo. 10. Monk's.

"Bloody Ninth" Locals were part of Civil War regiment

By Mark Hodapp
Staff writer

When the Civil War erupted in 1861, many Madison and St. Clair County residents rushed to enlist in the Union Army.

Many of these soldiers are recognized in Marion Morrison's "A History of the Ninth Regiment Illinois Voluntary, with the Regiment Roster."

Freeburg Civil War historian Mark Westhoff recently found an original copy of the book in the library at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville while doing research on his upcoming book, "The Bloody Ninth."

Westhoff said there were only a few remaining copies of Morrison's original, which was first published in 1864.

He said Morrison's book provides a unique perspective because the war ended about one year after the book was first published.

It's also unique because Morrison is the grand uncle of actor John Wayne.

Morrison also accomplished what few writers did during the war: he experienced it first hand, Westhoff said.

"It's extremely accurate," said Westhoff about Morrison's portrayal.

A former professor at Monmouth College and editor of a Presbyterian newspaper, Morrison joined the Ninth Regiment in September 1863 and began to chronicle its history.

But little did Morrison know at the time the importance and significance of the troop that he was covering, Westhoff said.

For instance, 50 percent of the Ninth Regiment soldiers were killed or later died from injuries caused by action, including Col. Augustus Mersy of Belleville.

Mersy, whose picture is on the book's front cover, worked as a cashier at the Bank of Belleville. Two years after the war, he died from wounds he suffered at the Battle of Atlanta.

John Simon, a history professor at Southern Illinois University at Carbondale, said Morrison also shows how the Ninth was a multicultural unit in which German and Americans fought together.

"Once Grant began his Tennessee River campaign, the Ninth found itself in the thick of battle, bearing the brunt at Fort Donelson of the Confederate attempt to break Grant's siege lines," Simon said.

Less than two months later, the Ninth shored up sagging Union lines after the surprise Confederate attack at Shiloh Church, retreating only when their ammunition was gone.

Copies of the book can be obtained calling 1-800-346-2680 or faxing or 1-800-346-2681.

Fort excavation on display

By Kelli Hauser
Staff writer

Area residents will dig the upcoming open house at Fort Belle Fontaine.

On Sunday, archaeological students from the University of Missouri-St. Louis will display recovered artifacts from the site. The students have been excavating the ruins since June 16.

The fort overlooking the Missouri River has a lot of history. It was the first American military post west of the Mississippi River, and the first outpost in the Louisiana Purchase. During their expedition, Lewis and Clark stopped there, and it was the starting point for Yellowstone expeditions.

"It was the commanding headquarters for the entire west up until 1826," said Ron Brunnert, who coordinated the dig. "So, our history is quite long."

Brunnert said digging in the area started in 1992, and several artifacts have been recovered since then. For the past two years, students from Washington University have worked with Brunnert and the UM-St. Louis students to continue the research.

At the open house, visitors will see foundations and wells from the 1800s. Artifacts on display will include bayonets, flints from old rifles, pottery, buttons of old uniforms, an ivory comb and a whiskey flask.

The artifacts are currently being curated and stored at UM-St. Louis. Brunnert said the Bissell House Museum may be the future site of a permanent exhibit. The post is the site of two forts, the lower of which was flooded out in the early 1800s. In 1810, Gen. Daniel Bissell arrived and built the upper fort.

Drawings of the forts will also be on display at the open house. Brunnert hopes future open houses will offer more of the forts than foundations and drawings.

"Hopefully, in the future, we can do some reconstruction and bring it back," he said.

The open house is scheduled from noon to 4 p.m. Admission is free and refreshments will be provided. To reach Fort Belle Fontaine, follow Bellefontaine Road north from Interstate 270 to the end of the road and follow the lane through the Missouri Hills Home.

Julia Meyer, 6, of Granite City, left, and her brother, Jake, 7, along with Molly Caldera, 8, of Mitchell, decorate a pinata during "Fun With Spanish," part of Belleville Area College's College for Kids program at the Granite City Campus. College for Kids is sponsored by BAC's Office of Non-Traditional Programs.

Host families needed for anxious students

Foreign high school students are scheduled to arrive soon for academic program home stays, and the sponsoring organization need a few more local host families.

According to Pacific Intercultural Exchange Executive Director John Doty, the students are all between the ages of 15 and 18 years, are English-speaking, have their own spending money, carry accident and health insurance, and are anxious to share their cultural experiences with their new American families.

PIE currently has programs to match almost every family's needs, ranging in length from a semester to a full academic year, where the students attend local high schools.

PIE area representatives match students with host families by finding common interests and lifestyles through an informal in-home meeting. Prospective host families are able to review student applications and select the perfect match. As there are no "typical" host families, PIE can fit a student into just about any situation, whether it be a single parent, a childless couple, a retired couple or a large family.

Families who host for PIE are also eligible to claim a $50.00 per month charitable contribution deduction on their itemized tax returns for each month they host a sponsored student.

For the upcoming programs, PIE has students from Spain,

Denmark, Germany, Poland, Russia, Finland, Argentina, Brazil, Colombia, Paraguay, Australia, New Zealand, Croatia and many other countries.

PIE has also been invited to participate in a special government-funded program to bring scholarship students from the Newly Independent States of the former Soviet Union to the United States.

PIE is a nonprofit educational organization that has sponsored more than 18,000 students from 40 countries since its founding in 1978. The organization is designated by the United States Information Agency and is listed by the Council on Standards for International Educational Travel, certifying that the organization complies with the standards set forth in CSJET's Standards for International Educational Travel Programs.

Doty encourages families to contact the program immediately, as it will allow the proper time for the students and hosts to get to know one another before they actually meet for the first time. If families interested in learning more about student exchange or arranging for a representative may call PIE, toll-free, at 1-800-631-1818. The agency also has travel/study program opportunities available for American high school students as well as possibilities for community volunteers to assist and work with area host families, students and schools.

Workshop concert planned

The Metro-East Junior Philharmonic Orchestra is having its Summer Workshop Orchestra Concert at 3 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 10, at Belleville Area College's Belleville Campus.

The orchestra will repeat the concert as part of the Belleville Parks and Recreation Program at 8 p.m. Aug. 11 in front of the courthouse, Illinois 159 and West Main Street.

Both concerts are free. Early registration is being accepted for auditions to be held at the end of August and early September for the fall season. For more information, call Sharon Lindsey at 277-1504 for a registration form. Students must be between the ages of 9 and 19, be able to read music, play two octave scales and prepare a solo showing proficiency in technique and lyrical elements.

The rehearsals are held from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. Mondays at Orchestra Hall, 116 N. Jackson, Belleville. The new season begins Sept. 8. All instruments are needed, especially lower strings (violins, violas and cellos), bassoons and trombones.

Emergency alternative planned

Through the cooperation of the Clark Oil Company and the Twin Rivers CAER organization, the Madison County Local Emergency Planning Committee has put together a program on Shelter In Place.

Shelter In Place is an alternative to evacuation during a time of emergency that the local emergency service might determine is the safest action to take.

The program consists of a video, pamphlets and a question and answer session presented by the committee. It should take about 30 minutes to complete.

If any group or organization is interested in having this program presented to them, call Jack Quigley, LEPC chairman, at the office of the Madison County Emergency Management Agency—692-0537.

12-screen theater in progress

Work began this week on Kerasotes Theatres' new 12-screen movie house that is expected to open around Thanksgiving.

Workers are pouring footings at the 10-acre site on Center Grove Road at Cougar Road for the complex, which will be the area's largest.

Birchtree Construction Services of Irvine, Calif., is the contractor for the facility, which will seat 2,300 people. Construction superintendent Tim Lindback said the complex will be state of the art, with Digital Theater Sound and stadium seating for all 12 screens.

Stadium seating, with seats tiered for a more realistic experience, is the hottest trend in the industry, Lindback said. He said moviegoers will also appreciate Digital Theater Sound.

"It's much more dramatic than Surround Sound," Lindback said. "It gives you more of a sense of being there."

The new theater will be easily accessible from the relocated Illinois Route 159, a 2.2-mile extension of South Main Street, when that project is completed by about 2001.

Preliminary data indicate vitamin C may help or reduce the severity of an asthma attack brought on by exercise. The best prevention of an attack is to use inhaler medications 15 to 30 minutes before exercising.

Fresh Picks

Fuzzy little green pods of okra, primarily favored in the South, grow in summer heat in any part of the country when nothing else flourishes. Always choose young pods, no more than 2 to 3 inches long. Older okra is tough and fibrous. There are two schools of thought for cooking it. A favorite in gumbo, the simmered Southern dish, okra is cooked long enough that its interior sticky juice becomes a thickener. Otherwise, pods whose tops are trimmed without being pierced can be cooked with insides intact. A good source of vitamin C and potassium, it cooks in three to six minutes when stir-fried, boiled, microwaved or baked, 10 minutes if grilled, and 15 minutes if pierced and steamed on a rack.

Big Fat Tip

When grilling fresh vegetables, a little olive oil gives flavor and encourages browning. Warming the oil slightly thins the oil for a very fine layer and minimal fat.

Future Shop

A 1997 trend forecast issued by Riedel Marketing Group puts no-guess breadmakers in the category of fail-proof products consumers will continue to want in the near future. Gas grills have surpassed charcoal grills in popularity. It may be necessary to have grilled bread in the future, because more households in the U.S. now own a grill than a toaster.

It's a Basket

Case

By Janice Denham
Staff writer

It's an open and shut case. The basket is full of picnic ideas.

From a menu of slaw with a crimson hue to spinach salad that is light on fat and sodium, a picnic holds colorful, playful foods attached with a slim string of effort that fills an impromptu or planned occasion with fun. It can be found anywhere — on grass, sand or carpet.

Get to the point of the occasion with quick picnic tricks:

- Keep it simple. Vinyl tablecloths do not absorb moisture from the top or the bottom, so they can be laid over damp areas and spills can be wiped off them, too.
- Dissolve a few spoonfuls of bleach in water. Carry in a spray bottle for taking care of areas that need thorough cleaning or come into contact with raw meat.
- Pack along butter or sodium-free seasonings to simplify adding flavor to sandwiches and grilled vegetables.
- Sweet beverages take thirst-quenching advantage of tangy flavors, like lemon and cranberry.
- Unbreakable wine glasses and a few small votive candles turn a picnic elegant.
- Bring plenty of ice and cleanup materials. Keep everything hot or cold as necessary. Pack plenty of bags for bringing home throwaway materials.

• Add sweetened dried cranberries or raisins to foods, like cookies or chicken salad, for texture and flavor.

• Make half-and-half tea: half-unsweetened tea, half cranberry juice cocktail, plus 2 teaspoons sugar for each cupful of liquid. For a fruity cocktail, pour 1/4 cup cranberry juice cocktail and 1/2 cup tropical-flavored juice (like mango or passion fruit) over ice, squeeze 1 lime wedge into juice, then fill to top of glass with club soda.

Top cookies baked in the shape of a pizza or in individual rounds with cool combinations.

1. To make pizza crust, slice 1 package (20 ounces) refrigerated sugar cookie dough 1/4-inch thick. Slightly overlap slices on 12-inch pizza pan lightly coated with nonstick cooking spray, then lightly press together edges to form crust. Bake in preheated 375 degree oven 12 to 14 minutes. Cool.

2. Prepare 1 package (4 servings) instant vanilla pudding mix according to package directions, except use only 1-1/4 cups milk. Fold in 2 cups mini marshmallows and 1 cup frozen whipped topping, thawed.

3. Spoon pudding over cooled crust. Top with bite-size fresh fruit — like strawberries, blueberries, grapes, oranges, kiwifruit and banana — and 1 cup mini marshmallows.

Slice in 16 wedges to serve. Toppings also can be placed on ready-made cookies.

Heart-y Bites

By BECKY BLAIR

'Insanity' of eggplant is credibly delicious

Each summer many homespun gardeners work the soil to produce mouth-watering, fresh delicacies. Evelyn and Frank Schanzel, my childhood neighbors, are two of them. My family reaps the benefits of their toil and generosity when we receive freshly harvested vegetables.

The first eggplant of the season is small and white, resembling an egg in shape. Now a wider variety of eggplant is readily available.

One of the most common is the Japanese variety, which is 6 to 8 inches in length, a thin and elongated ovoid in shape, dark gray or black-purple in color. The Chinese eggplant, another common variety, is shaped similarly to the Japanese eggplant but is larger in size.

For thousands of years, the eggplant was known as "mala insana," the "raging" or "mad" apple. It always was soaked in cold salt water to remove its "insanity." Today, it is common practice to salt and drain the freshly cut eggplant, not for fear of its "poisonous" juices, but to make it less bitter. The larger the eggplant, the more important the salting process becomes.

To salt a cut eggplant, start by sprinkling cut surfaces liberally with salt and lay the vegetable on clean kitchen towels or on a rack over towels. Let it stand, lightly covered, at least 30 minutes. Wipe off as much salt as possible or rinse lightly with water, then dry it over more towels.

EGGPLANT AND ZUCCHINI CASSEROLE

- 1 small eggplant (about 1-1/2 lb.), peeled, cut in cubes
- 5 tbsp. olive oil
- 3 tsp. water
- 1 small onion, diced
- 1 large green bell pepper, diced
- 2 medium zucchini, peeled, cut in 1/4 inch cubes
- 1 can (15 oz.) tomato sauce
- 1/4 tsp. black pepper
- 1 cup (4 oz.) grated provolone cheese or 1 cup (4 oz.) shredded mozzarella (part-skim) cheese
- 1 cup bran flakes cereal, crushed
- 1/4 cup chopped fresh parsley, or 4 tsp. dried parsley flakes
- 1 tsp. chopped fresh or 1 tsp. dried basil
- 1 tsp. fresh or 1/4 tsp. dried oregano

Preheat oven to 375 degrees.

Saute eggplant in 2 tablespoons olive oil. When oil is absorbed, add water. Continue to cook until eggplant is tender. Remove from pan.

In remaining 3 tablespoons oil, saute onion and green pepper 2 to 3 minutes. Add zucchini. Cook until tender.

Add cooked eggplant, pepper and tomato sauce. Pour into 2-1/2 to 3-quart casserole dish.

Mix together cereal, parsley, basil and oregano. Sprinkle on top of eggplant mixture. Top with cheese. Bake in preheated oven 20 to 25 minutes until browned and bubbly.

a good source of fiber. In this recipe, skim milk mozzarella cheese can be used instead of provolone to lower fat and cholesterol. The casserole can be served as a main dish or a meal accompaniment.

Registered dietitian Becky Blair is a member of the nutrition committee of the American Heart Association, St. Louis Chapter.

Whether the "raging apple" was thought to drive a person mad or merely make him crazy with love for it, eggplant was eaten cautiously. Small amounts of it, often combined with tomatoes and peppers, were consumed as a love potion. Not until the 19th century did the eggplant gain full acceptance, especially in Italy.

The eggplant is a member of the night shade family, cousin to the potato, pepper and tomato. Maybe that is the reason it blends so well with peppers and tomatoes in cooked dishes.

The popularity of the eggplant may be due in part to its versatility. Delicate in flavor, it takes on and enhances the flavors of other ingredients in a dish.

Eggplant is fat-free and low in calories. It contains small amounts of vitamin C, phosphorus and calcium.

The onion and green pepper in this eggplant-zucchini casserole provide valuable phytochemicals. The bran cereal flakes offer

GARDEN OMELET

- 4 eggs
- 1/4 cup water
- 1/2 tsp. salt
- Finch pepper
- 2 tsp. butter or margarine
- Garden Filling

Using fork, mix eggs, water, salt and pepper.

Heat 1 tablespoon butter in omelet pan or 8-inch skillet until just hot enough to that drop of water sizzles. Pour in about 1/2 cup egg mixture. Mixture should set at edge at once.

Using pancake turner, carefully draw cooked portions at edge toward center, so uncooked portions flow to bottom. Tilt skillet as necessary so uncooked egg can flow. Slide pan rapidly back and forth over heat to keep mixture moving freely.

While top is still moist and creamy-looking, spoon half the Garden Filling over half of omelet. Using pancake turner, fold other half over filling. Flip browned-side up onto serving plate. Keep warm. Repeat, using remaining filling.

Garden Filling: In saucepan, cook 1/4 cup chopped onion in 2 tablespoons butter or margarine over medium heat 4 to 5 minutes until tender but not brown. Stir in 2 medium tomatoes, peeled and chopped; 1 medium zucchini, sliced; 1/4 cup chopped green bell pepper; 2 tablespoons snipped fresh parsley, and 1-1/2 teaspoons seasoned salt. Simmer about 5 minutes until thick.

Makes 2 servings.

Private Label Test Run

Testers let lemonade give pause for pucker

Lemonade was a hit with tasters looking to fill a big summer thirst when they tested President's Choice pink lemonade, Schnucks lemonade and Schnucks fruit punch, all available in frozen concentrate form at Schnuck Markets.

The group must have been lemonade lovers, because they appreciated the tart flavors.

"I liked the tartness of the yellow frozen lemonade. It was very refreshing and thirst quenching, because it wasn't too sweet. The pink lemonade was less tart, but still good," a taster said.

"I loved the tartness of the regular lemonade. The more tart the better for me," was an echo.

Another thought their tartness reflected the nature of frozen varieties.

"I buy frozen lemonade when I'll drink it all by myself, but I use sugar-free dry mixes with half a lemon squeezed and added to the mixture when others will drink it with me," she said.

"The pink seems to be more of a compromise in taste — nice and lemon-y, but without as much tartness as the traditional concentrate."

There was agreement to the disposition of frozen lemonade.

"The lemonade is nice and tart, much closer to fresh than the powdered mixes and worth buying at the price," another tester said.

Thirsty people look for ways, like frozen concentrates for lemonade and fruit punch, to quench their summer-parched throats. Private label brands, like these from Schnuck Markets, often cost less than those made from scratch.

President's Choice pink lemonade costs 99 cents for a 12-ounce container of frozen concentrate, while each Schnucks product costs 89 cents. Unlike most juice concentrates, the lemonade (not the fruit punch) is concentrated so a consumer should use 4-1/3 cans of water, which results in a full two quarts, just like the ready-to-mix powdered products.

Price was on the mind of at least one taster.

"The fruit drinks are a good buy — about half the price of some name brands.

I use frozen lemonade and limeade both," a regular shopper said.

The pink lemonade was not only sweeter than the regular, but also had a different consistency.

"I like the looks of the pink lemonade and that it doesn't have a lot of pulp. It may be just the color, but the pink seems more refreshing to me," a taster noted.

Although the sweet fruit punch did not gain as many admirers among a group that enjoys tart flavors, it was not ignored either.

A taster said, "The fruit punch is a little watery and not as flavorful as I'd like, but also not so sweet. Because it is less sweet, it is more refreshing than other punches."

A mother of young boys thought it might fit into their kitchen plan.

"The fruit punch was very good — not too sweet and not too tart. We generally drink a better-known brand. I think this has a bit more bite, but not so much so it would keep the boys from drinking or me from buying it," she said.

Another taster added the level of sweetness may appeal more to children than adults.

Fruit, icy coolness and freshness color dessert

For an elegant and fat-free dessert that is easy to prepare, hollow out an orange or lemon and fill with fruit sorbet.

Fruit juice concentrate, thawed and poured straight from the can, makes a quick sauce to finish the presentation.

SLICE OF SORBET

- 4 whole fresh fruit: oranges, lemons, apples or nectarines
- 1 carton (24 oz.) whole fruit sorbet: strawberry, raspberry, peach, lemon, mango-orange or cherry cordial
- 1/3 cup frozen fruit juice concentrate, such as raspberry juice or strawberry-lemonade, thawed
- Fresh mint sprigs

Make fresh fruit into "cup" for sorbet by slicing off top one-fourth of fruit and scooping out center. Leave shell of orange or lemon intact; leave 1/4-inch edge around apple or peach. A melon baller or grapefruit spoon makes an easy job of this. Spoon can be used to scrape citrus fruit shell clean.

Fill cavity with sorbet.

At this point, fruit and sorbet can be held in freezer until serving, or served immediately.

At serving, place each sorbet-filled fruit on a dessert plate. Drizzle undiluted fruit juice concentrate on plate and around fruit as sauce. Garnish with fresh mint.

Makes 4 servings.

Take place in busy line, but don't stew over meals

Summer is supposed to be "lazy and hazy," but most people fill their days fuller as they try to make the most of extra daylight hours. Between year-round jobs and warm-weather socializing and sports, something has to give. Often it is healthy meal preparation.

However, with the plethora of fresh produce available and the use of a microwave oven, the season can be more nutritiously satisfying than any other. Steamed fresh vegetables are delicious and healthful. Prepared in a microwave oven, they are also colorful, attractive, quick and easy.

Simply clean and slice fresh vegetables onto a microwave-safe plate or serving dish. The choice is overwhelming with broccoli, zucchini, cauliflower, peppers and other bright colors and flavors. Add a few tablespoons of water. Cover with plastic wrap, leaving a small vent for steam to escape. Cook on high power about 6 minutes per pound of vegetables until tender-crisp. Drain the liquid, dot with butter or margarine, if desired, and add favorite seasonings. The result is a delicious meal-in-minutes or a vegetable plate to share as a side dish.

Many people enjoy hot dogs, especially in the summer. Today there are many varieties, some that please even the health-conscious. Betty Serati specializes in microwave cooking.

Smoking cures feeling of listlessness over grill

Join the smoking crowd. For grilling connoisseurs who want to spend time crafting subtle flavors, smoking — on the grill — is the way to go.

Smoking meat is a growing trend for the flavor it adds to food without fat. When the smoke, created by using wood chips on a fire, encircles mild meats like pork, fish and poultry, it produces mouth-watering flavor and rich color that are hard to resist.

Pork shoulder, smoked over low heat (about 250°), requires extra cooking time. It perfectly matches a relaxing summer day with family and friends because it is easy to do.

It can be done in a kettle-style grill using indirect heat and adding wood chips to banked coals. At least two hours before starting to cook, place chips or chunks of wood in water to soak. Estimate two chunks of wood or a good handful of wood chips for each hour of smoke-cooking time. Left-over soaked wood can be dried to use another time.

Build the fire about 40 minutes before cooking. Build a pile of 25 to 30 briquettes on one side of the fire grate. Light them and let them burn down to a hot glow, covered with gray ash, leaving only one bottom air vent open directly under the charcoal. Place an aluminum loaf pan filled two-thirds full of water across from charcoal.

Spread hot coals with a pair of long-handled tongs to make a bed for the wood chips. Place one or two generous handfuls of wood directly on the hot coals. Place the cooking grate on the grill, then place food over the pan of water on the opposite side of the grill from the fire source. Cover the grill, leaving the top vents fully open directly over the food.

Maintain a temperature of 225° to 250°. If the temperature rises above 250°, almost close the bottom vent directly under the charcoal. Monitor the heat and re-open the vent as the temperature drops.

If food, like a pork shoulder, takes more than an hour to cook, keep an extra bed of charcoal burning in a small grill nearby to add to the cooking grill to maintain heat. For a smoke-cooking period of 6 to 8 hours, add 3 or 4 new briquettes to the supplemental fire every 40 minutes or so.

As smoke escaping from the top vent slows down or stops, add more wood to the fire. Work quickly with long-handled tongs, because each time the lid is opened, it adds 10 to 15 minutes extra cooking time.

Foods for a smoker can be prepped the same way as foods for the grill. Marinate or rub before smoking, if desired. Boneless meats, such as pork shoulder, shrink during long, slow cooking. A layer of fat on the meat holds shrinkage to a minimum; simply cut it off before serving.

PICNIC PORK TENDERLOINS

- 2 pork tenderloins (about 3 lb. each)
- 1 cup teriyaki sauce
- 1 tsp. olive oil
- Juice of 1 lemon
- 1 1/2 tsp. minced garlic
- 6 peppercorns, crushed
- 2 tsp. balsamic vinegar
- 2 tsp. water
- Juice of 1 medium orange
- 1 tsp. brown sugar
- 2 medium oranges, sliced 1/2 inch thick

Combine 1/2 cup teriyaki sauce, olive oil, lemon juice, 1 teaspoon minced garlic, crushed peppercorns and vinegar.

In plastic bag, pour mixture over pork. Seal bag. Marinate, turning occasionally, in refrigerator 1 to 6 hours; longer time is best.

Discard marinade. Grill pork over hot coals up to 20 minutes, depending on thickness of pork.

Pork will get a natural crust as it cooks.

Combine remaining 1/2 cup teriyaki sauce, water, orange juice, 1/2 teaspoon garlic and brown sugar. About 5 minutes before pork is done, baste all sides of meat with sauce.

Fork is done when knife inserted into center reveals barely-pink meat.

Remove pork to platter. Let stand 5 minutes.

While pork is cooling, heat oranges about 1 minute on grill until warm and grilled pattern is evident.

Serve pork sliced 1/2-inch thick, with grilled orange tucked between slices. Warm remaining basting sauce and drizzle on top.

Winter recipe wins on grill

Ruth Bland, O'Fallon, is this week's winner of dinner certificates to the Pasta House Co. for Picnic Pork Tenderloins.

Originally designed by a friend to serve on a Christmas buffet, she modified the recipe to suit her teenage children's tastes in summer. She uses pork tenderloin because of its low fat. Her family likes the meat because it is quick and easy to grill. She says her recipe makes four servings large enough even for teenagers.

Let lazy days take over grill with vegetables

These long hot days of summer may seem easy-going, but their beauty is in a bounteous larder gathered from garden harvests. When a back yard grill and fresh vegetables cross paths, easy results are delicious. Vegetable kabobs made with abundant produce are a new favorite to serve for supper.

Melanie Barnard — grilling expert and author of "Marinades" (HarperPerennial, $10.00) — puts vegetables at the top of her list of favorite foods to grill. She sets a calendar by what she grills: January — fennel, February — broccoli, March — artichokes, April — asparagus, May — spring onions, June — new potatoes, July — summer squash, August — tomatoes and bell peppers, September — eggplant, October — acorn squash, November — sweet potatoes, December — portobello mushrooms. Grilled whole, sliced or parboiled first, vegetables only need to be brushed with a seasoned marinade, such as Italian salad dressing, to turn them into masterpieces.

Most vegetables are essentially fat-free, so they need a bit of oil to keep them from sticking to a grill rack. When grilled, their natural starches turn to sugars, giving greater depth of flavor. This sweet caramelization, accompanied by a bit of tangy vinegar and the addition of a few herbs and spices, complements each vegetable's natural flavors. A gentle brushing of Italian salad dressing achieves this in a flash.

Seasonal vegetables of late summer — such as bell peppers, onion, zucchini, eggplant, yellow squash and mushrooms — need no indoor pre-cooking.

Slice, then brush vegetables with salad dressing. When done grilling, arrange them atop a bed of greens, drizzle with a bit more dressing and sprinkle with a few croutons or accompany with grilled bread.

For a change of pace, skewer the vegetables, cut in chunks, with chunks of chicken, beef or lamb. Chicken pairs especially well with delicate summer vegetables. When the marinade is married with basil, a summer specialty, the result is terrific.

In Italian Vegetable Kabobs, a cook chooses the vegetable. Beef or lamb easily substitutes for the chicken.

For example, remove the chicken and vegetables from the skewers and arrange them on a mix of lettuce leaves and other greens tossed with Italian dressing, or leave them on the skewers and lay across a bed of herbs, rice or orzo. Finish with an all-American favorite, like sliced summer fruit over vanilla ice cream.

ITALIAN VEGETABLE KABOBS

Combine 1 1/4 cups bottled Italian dressing, 1/4 cup chopped fresh leaf basil, 2 tablespoons chopped fresh parsley, 2 tablespoons lemon juice and 2 teaspoons grated lemon peel.

On 4 skewers, alternately thread 1 pound boneless, skinless chicken breast, cut in 1-inch cubes, and 4 cups fresh vegetables, cut in 1-inch pieces (red bell pepper, onion, zucchini, eggplant, yellow squash and mushrooms).

In large, shallow non-aluminum baking dish or plastic bag, pour 1/4 cups marinade over kabobs. Refrigerate remaining marinade.

Grill or broil kabobs, turning and basting with 1/4 cup refrigerated marinade, 15 minutes or until vegetables are tender and chicken is no longer pink.

To serve, toss remaining refrigerated marinade with greens. Top with kabobs. Makes 4 servings.

VEGETABLE GRILLING TIMES

Each vegetable should be grilled over medium, direct heat, unless otherwise indicated.

Vegetable grilling times are from "Marinades":

Asparagus — thick stalks, 9 to 11 minutes.

Corn — 1 ear, direct or indirect heat.

Wise Ways

By MARY SCHROEPFER

Celebrate 'sneak zucchini onto neighbor's porch day'

Some folks tell fish tales about the one that got away, but my co-workers more likely spin yarns about the deluge of zucchini that occurs every summer.

After the freezer is stuffed with zucchini bread and after the family tires of zucchini soup, zucchini pasta salad, zucchini relish, zucchini-chicken-rice casserole, and zucchini cake, give it to friends, neighbors and co-workers. Pass along a few recipes to perk interest. Look for whole cookbooks devoted to zucchini recipes.

Simply-prepared zucchini is nutritious. Three-fourths cup raw zucchini contains only 14 calories and no fat. The same amount of battered and fried zucchini sticks has 210 calories, 47 percent of them coming from fat.

A gardener whose zucchini has mushroomed can be grateful for its versatility.

Toss raw or steamed zucchini, cut in slices, into a salad, or serve on its own with vinaigrette dressing and fresh herbs. Thread large chunks of zucchini, tomato, eggplant, onion and bell pepper on skewers, brush lightly with oil and grill. Add grated zucchini to quick breads, muffins and cake batter, allowing for its moisture.

Team zucchini with fresh tomatoes or spaghetti sauce for a tasty topping. Cut zucchini and yellow squash in narrow sticks, blanch and toss with cooked spinach fettuccine for a summer feast. Sauté zucchini with tomato, red, green and yellow bell pepper strips, onion, and shallots or garlic for a colorful side dish.

Small to medium — not more than 7 inches long — zucchini taste best, with thin and tender skin. Look for zucchini with sound, glossy exterior. Avoid any with nicks, pits or soft spots. Zucchini should be plump, not shriveled.

Store zucchini in plastic bags in the refrigerator crisper up to one week. While zucchini can be added to salads raw, blanching it briefly enhances the flavor and brightens the color.

For more information, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to: Zucchini Tips, University Outreach and Extension, P.O. Box 71, Union, Mo. 63084.

Home economist Mary Schroepfer is nutrition specialist with University Extension (University of Missouri system) in Franklin County.

MEXICAN ZUCCHINI SHRIMP SALAD

- 4 cups sliced zucchini or other summer squash
- 1/4 cup finely chopped red bell pepper
- 2 cups cooked, chopped shrimp
- 1/4 cup lime juice
- 1/2 cup olive or vegetable oil
- 2 tbsp. minced fresh or 1 tsp. dried cilantro
- 1 tsp. minced fresh dill or 1/4 tsp. dill weed
- 1 tsp. minced fresh parsley
- 2 tbsp. minced scallion or green onion
- 1 tsp Dijon mustard
- Salt and pepper

To blanch zucchini, cook in boiling water 1 minute. Immediately take remove it and plunge it in cold water 1 minute. Drain. Pat dry. Combine zucchini, red pepper and shrimp in serving bowl.

Pies, brownies and potato pets

What is a county fair without pies, brownies and fresh vegetables? If it's the St. Louis County Fair and Air Show, only an air show, hot air balloon race and fireworks display, with food, rides, crafts, circus acts and live entertainment on the side.

The Suburban Journals, a fair sponsor, invite bakers to send in recipes for possible selection to participate in contests Saturday, Aug. 30. The fair runs Friday evening through Monday of Labor Day weekend at Spirit of St. Louis Airport, 18270 Edison Ave., Chesterfield. One recipe in either or both baking contests may be submitted from a single household. Pie recipes with uncooked eggs will not be considered.

Twelve contestants will be chosen to bring their ready-to-sample food for each contest — pies at 10 a.m., brownies at 12:30 p.m. — representing north, south and west areas of the Journal publication area.

Youths ages 6 through 12 can send in a drawing of how they want to decorate big, fresh baking potatoes with at least two other edible items and any other adornments that make them look like a real or imagined animal.

More than one child in a family may enter a drawing for possible inclusion in the potato pals event, which will be held at 2 p.m. The child's name and age should be on the drawing. Potatoes will be provided at the contest.

Free admission to the fair will be provided to those chosen to participate. Prizes will be given to all contestants.

Send all entries to: Journal Fair Food Contest, Suburban Journals, 1714 Deer Tracks Trail, St. Louis, Mo. 63131.

Proceeds go to the Children's Miracle Network.

SPICED CHAI: DIFFERENT BLEND

A reader, alert to last week's feature tea recipe for Spiced Indian Chai, called to differ with Lipton's tea mixture.

Her morning blend includes cardamom or mint, rather than the optional ingredient listed, which was coriander.

Based on her everyday mixture, the directions would be:

Bring 2 cups milk and 2 cups water just to boil. Add 4 tea bags, 1/2 cup sugar, 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon, 1/4 teaspoon ground ginger, 1/8 teaspoon ground allspice and, if desired, 1/8 teaspoon cardamom or dried mint. Simmer 3 minutes.

Remove tea bags and strain. Serve immediately in four (1-cup) mugs.
